I. INTRODUCTION

Inventor Charles Moore, whose ingenuity gave birth to the eponymous Moore microprocessor, has invented something new: the ideas that (a) his contingent claim entitles him to a trustee to further his self-interest, (b) he has the marketing skill and business acumen to commercialize patent portfolios worth hundreds of millions of dollars and can ignore infringers to avoid the label of “patent troll,” and (c) he should be returned to control of the invention whose rights he signed away in exchange for more than $11 million so far paid to him personally.

Mr. Moore’s Motion<sup>1</sup> is based primarily on false claims of misconduct by TPL founder Daniel E. Leckrone. This is odd since Mr. Moore admits that he knew when he filed his Motion that Leckrone had already resigned and been replaced.<sup>2</sup> The Motion is, in effect, a request to replace the consensus new CEO for TPL, Swamy Venkidu, without a single fact to support such an action.

There are now two plans and two disclosure statements on file and set for hearing on October 2, 2014. The negotiated resolution of a hotly contested case is finally ready to proceed to approval. Presumably both the joint OCC<sup>3</sup>-TPL plan and the Moore plan can move to a joint confirmation hearing on an accelerated basis. Appointment of a trustee would only cause delay, disruption and increase expenses. In the absence of clear and convincing evidence to support a finding of cause to appoint a trustee to replace Mr. Venkidu, and given the OCC’s opposition to such appointment, Mr. Moore’s motion should be denied.

II. ARGUMENT

A. Mr. Moore Will Not Have A Claim Or Receive Distributions Under Either His Plan or the Joint OCC-TPL Plan

Opposition to a motion does not usually begin with reference to other filings not before the Court, but in this instance such a predicate is mandatory. To begin, Mr. Moore’s claim is, in his own words, purely “contingent” with “liability [only] if [the] settlement of litigation is set aside.”<sup>4</sup> Exhibit A to Mr. Moore’s claim posits, rather incredibly, that “...TPL or others on its behalf [could] set aside the 1/23/13 Settlement Agreement [under which Moore, Patriot and TPL assigned their rights to license the MMP Portfolio to PDS and] ... restore Mr. Moore’s rights to the status quo ante “somehow entitling him to assert a claim in excess of $30 million in this case. In the next paragraph, Mr. Moore freely admits that, if the 1/23/13 settlement is “assumed and accepted ... the contingency upon which this claim of Plaintiff Moore rests will not occur, and this contingent claim will not be pursued by Mr. Moore.”

The OCC-TPL Joint Plan<sup>5</sup> and the Moore’s Plan<sup>6</sup> both provide for assumption of the 1/23/13 settlement agreement.<sup>7</sup> Mr. Moore is therefore entitled to no distribution as a creditor under either Plan. While he may technically have standing to prosecute the instant Motion, the weight of his views must be considered when balanced against those of the OCC, secured claimants, unsecured claimants and insiders who will be treated under whichever plan is ultimately approved.

1                   B. Mr. Moore Bears The Burden Of Proving Entitlement to a Trustee By Clear and 2                   Convincing Evidence.

3                   “The appointment of a trustee in a chapter 11 case is an extraordinary remedy. The 4                   drafters of the Code recognized that, as a general rule, in the absence of fraud, dishonesty,
5                   incompetence, gross mismanagement, or similar grounds, the debtor’s management should be 6                   given an opportunity to propose a plan of reorganization for the debtor. For this reason there is a 7                   strong presumption that the debtor should be permitted to remain in possession absent a showing
8                   of the need for appointment of a trustee . . . .” 7 Collier on Bankruptcy Par. 1104.02[3][b][i]
9                   (Alan N. Resnick and Henry J. Sommer eds., 16th ed.) at 1104-9. As Mr. Moore assumes 10                  correctly, “ . . . the evidence in support of appointment of a trustee must be clear and convincing.”
11                  See Sharon Steel, 871 F.2d at 1226. ‘It is settled that appointment of a trustee should be the 12                  exception, rather than the rule.’ Id. at 1225.

13                  Proof by the preponderance of evidence means that it is sufficient to persuade the finder
14                  of fact that the proposition is more likely true than not. Clear and convincing evidence is a 15                  higher standard requiring a high probability of success. In re Kelley, 300 B.R. 11, 17 (B.A.P. 9th
16                  Cir. 2003). Clear and convincing evidence, such as repeat filer must present in order to rebut
17                  statutory presumption of bad faith and to obtain continuation of temporary, 30-day stay, is that 18                  weight of proof which produces, in mind of trier of fact, a firm belief or conviction as to truth of 19                  allegations sought to be established, i.e., evidence so clear, direct, weighty and convincing as to 20                  enable fact finder to come to clear conviction, without hesitancy, of truth of precise facts in 21                  issue.” In re Garrett, 357 B.R. 128 (Bankr. C.D. Ill. 2006).

22                   C. The Motion Fails or Lack of Any Evidentiary Support and Is Insupportable On 23                   Legal Grounds.

1 Mr. Moore's Motion is remarkable both for its inaccuracy and the absence of admissible
2 supporting evidence.<sup>8</sup> Leaving aside the detailed evidentiary objections to what is alleged on 3 which the Court will rule separately, there is simply no basis on which a ruling of cause to 4 appoint a trustee could be made here.

5 1. There Is No Evidence of Cause to Appoint a Trustee

6 Mr. Moore's jumbled allegations of cause in the Motion from 8:20- 9:5 are as follows:

7 (1) prior management, Mr. Leckrone, allegedly appropriated the proceeds of an uncertain
8 number of non-MMP licenses without notice or approval by the OCC<sup>9</sup>; (2) non-MMP portfolios
9 are licensed by Alliacense without oversight or accountability,<sup>10</sup> and the proceeds flow directly
10 to Mr. Leckrone with little left for TPL<sup>11</sup>; and, (3) TPL has been grossly mismanaged because its 11 strategy has resulted in its being labeled a patent troll and the portfolio has been "ignored" by 12 both TPL and Alliacense<sup>12</sup> with the net result being a pause in the issuance of MMP licenses.
13 TPL responds as follows to these allegations.

15 First, Mr. Moore submitted no admissible evidence of his allegations that proceeds of 16 licenses have been appropriated by Mr. Leckrone. Even if allegations as to the actions of prior 17 management<sup>13</sup> were relevant to this Motion's effort to replace Mr. Venkidu with a trustee, TPL
18 has explained in great detail its position as to why this Court's Settlement Procedures Order<sup>14</sup>
19

21 <sup>8</sup> TPL is concurrently filing a separate evidentiary objection to the multiple violations of the 22 Federal Rules of Evidence contained both in the Motion and supporting Moore Declaration
23 which include but are not limited to hearsay not within a recognized exception, best evidence, 24 and relevance.

25 <sup>9</sup> Motion, 8:25-9:1.

26 <sup>10</sup> Motion, 9:16-18

27 <sup>11</sup> Motion, 9:19-22.

28 <sup>12</sup> Motion, 9:23-10:2

<sup>13</sup> TPL initially responded on December 17, 2013 to the allegations in the Motion that it had violated the Settlement Procedures Order with its TPL's Statement Of Position Regarding Application And Interpretation Of Court Order.

<sup>14</sup> Order on Motion Regarding Settlement Procedures dated May 7, 2013, docket no. 124.

1 was not violated by the implementation of settlements deemed approved thereunder. This Court,
2 after extensive briefing and a hearing, elected not to appoint a trustee based on those allegations.
3 In any case, all proceeds generated were used strictly in accordance with orders for the use of 4 cash collateral approved by this Court.

5 Second, the Settlement Procedures Order applies to all non-MMP licenses of portfolios
6 owned by TPL. The statement that “non-MMP portfolios are licensed by Alliacense without 7 oversight or accountability” is patently false.

9 Third, Mr. Moore’s unsupported allegations of gross mismanagement resulting from an 10 alleged abandonment of the MMP portfolio, and a litigation first strategy that has led the ITC to 11 label TPL a patent troll are also false. As the Court may recall, TPL does not issue MMP
12 licenses: PDS does.<sup>15</sup> PDS and Alliacense have been attempting to finalize MMP licenses, and 13 while numerous licenses have been discussed, prospective licensees have taken a “wait and see”
14 approach because (1) the bankruptcy process and threat of appointment of a trustee, followed by 15 a creditor plan with a provision that would have allowed rejection of fully paid non-exclusive
16 licenses issued, as well as litigation against insiders and IP owners, (2) there are ongoing appeals
17 in the U.S. District Court of rulings both for and against TPL; and (3) the plans proposed have 18 undermined Alliacense's ability to generate licenses through PDS given the threat of litigation
19 against it. Mr. Moore, a direct beneficiary of MMP licenses, has a vested and understandable
20 interest in seeing MMP licenses issue, but the truth is that that is not likely until a single plan is 21 before the Court.
22
23
24

---

25 <sup>15</sup> It is worth noting that the PDS Board now consists of a member appointed by the OCC
26 (since Mr. Leckrone gave up his seat as part of the term sheet with the OCC), a member 27 appointed by PTSC, and a third member to be consensually selected by the aforementioned two members or appointed by an arbitrator. Any perceived deadlock is a thing of the past.

1                   2. There Is No Evidence That Appointment Of a Trustee Is In The Interest
2                   of Creditors.

3                   The Motion from 4:10- 8:19 attempts to articulate the bases on which appointment of a 4 trustee might ever be in the interest of creditors. Mr. Moore complains of the delay in the case.
5 He complains that neither an OCC nor a TPL plan is “awaiting approval” and that the Joint
6 OCC-TPL Plan has no accompanying disclosure statement. He complains that no MMP licenses
7 have issued for a year. He alleges, without specificity, that there “ ... have been and continue to 8 be unaccounted-for distributions, and payments to Mr. Leckrone and his entities, consuming
9 most of the non-MMP Portfolio revenues received . . . .” He complains that litigation setbacks
10 have multiplied, including a problematic ruling at the ITC, that TPL has been labeled a “patent 11 troll” and finally that Mr. Leckrone’s resignation itself, notwithstanding Moore’s allegations 12 against him, justifies appointment of a trustee.

13                   The only support offered for these many allegations are references to numerous other 14 documents as to which he requests the Court take judicial notice.<sup>16</sup> TPL objects to all such 15 references as improper uses of Federal Rules of Evidence, Rule 201, as they related to matters
16 which are under dispute; moreover, each document contains numerous objectionable statements
17 that are and will be challenged themselves.

18                   3. The Law Does Not Support Appointment of a Trustee In This Case.

19                   The factors a court should evaluate when considering appointment of a trustee under 20 section 1104(a)(2) are as follows:

21
22                   Section 1104(a)(2), contrary to subsection (a)(1) where appointment of a trustee is 23 mandatory upon specific finding of cause, “envisions a flexible standard ....
24 giv[ing] discretion to appoint a trustee ‘when to do so would serve the parties’ and 25 estate’s interests.’ ” Marvel Entm’t Grp., Inc., 140 F.3d 463, 474 (3d Cir. 1999)
(citation omitted); 1031 Tax Group, 374 B.R. at 91 (stating that “§ 1104(a)(2)
26 reflects ‘the practical reality that a trustee is needed.’ ” (quoting In re V. Savino Oil & Heating Co., 99 B.R. 518, 527 n.11 (Bankr.E.D.N.Y. 1989))). Under §

27 <sup>16</sup> Motion, 5:25-28.

1 1104(a)(2), the court utilizes a cost/benefit analysis and general principles of 2 equity to determine whether appointment of trustee is in the best interests of the 3 estate and all the constituents involved. 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a)(2); see 7 Collier on 4 Bankruptcy ¶ 1104.02[3][d][ii] (summarizing the cost/benefit analysis under § 5 1104(a)(2)). In balancing these anticipated benefits and accompanying costs, the 6 following factors are given consideration: “(1) the trustworthiness of the debtor;
7 (2) the debtor's past and present performance and prospects for rehabilitation; (3)
8 whether the business community and creditors of the estate have confidence in the 9 debtor; and (4) whether the benefits outweigh the costs.” LHC, 2013 WL
10 3760109, at *9 (citation omitted); see Sundale, 400 B.R. at 909 (“Loss of 11 confidence, or extreme acrimony[ ] ... constitute elements relevant to the decision
12 of whether it is in the best interests of creditors and others under section 13 1104(a)(2) to appoint a trustee.” (citations omitted)).

14 In re Bergeron, __ WL __, 2013 WL 5874571 at *9 (Bkrtcy.E.D.N.C., 2013).

15 As the moving party, it was Mr. Moore’s burden to show by clear and convincing
16 evidence, that on balance, the advantages of appointment of a trustee outweigh the disadvantages 17 associated therewith, specifically lacking is any indication how much his proposed trustee and 18 licensing agent would expend replacing TPL, its new CEO and Alliacense. See In re New 19 Orleans Paddlewheels, Inc., 350 B.R. 667, 692, 56 Collier Bankr. Cas. 2d (MB) 1142 (Bankr.
20 E.D. La. 2006) (in determining whether appointment of a trustee is in best interests of creditors 21 and estate, court may consider the trustworthiness of the debtor balanced against the costs of the 22 appointment) (citations omitted). No such analysis was even attempted. The Court cannot be 23 asked to decide, without any assistance, if a trustee’s professionals and staff would be a more 24 economical alternative than the amounts Mr. Venkidu is projected to require to operate TPL.
25 This factor alone suggests that the Motion must be denied.

26 Mr. Moore supports allegations of lost “trust and confidence” in the debtor-in-possession
27 with string cites to cases from 8:14-19 which are distinguishable on the facts from the present
28 case. See In re Keeley And Grabanski Land Partnership (Bkcty.B.A.P.8th Cir. 2011), 455 B.R.
153 (Debtor’s repeated refusals to submit to Rule 2004 exam due to “sickness” and requests for protective orders regarding the same due to related stress and depression from the case led the court to find that the Debtor’s refusal or inability to “keep the bankruptcy case moving” was a major factor in the appointment of a trustee.); In re Products International Co (Bkcty.D.Ariz.

1 2008), 395 B.R. 101 (IRS tax liability was not paid in a timely manner and would require the 2 discipline of a seasoned manager to ensure the obligation was repaid. The owners of the Debtor
3 disagreed, from a short-term and strategic long-term stand-point as to how the Debtor's
4 operations should be conducted); In re Taub (Bkcty.E.D.N.Y. 2010), 427 B.R. 208, aff'd 2011
5 WL 1322390 (Debtor's retention of eight counsel over 21 months that the case had been pending
6 and Debtor's failure to meet administrative obligations including to pay significant post-petition
7 expenses to maintain certain properties); In re Ridgemour Meyer Properties, LLC
8 (Bkcty.S.D.N.Y. 2008), 413 B.R. 101 (Debtor secretly transferred real property and secretly 9 recorded deed of trust and then covered up and hid what they had done from an arbitrator and 10 joint venture partner).

11 Application of the other three factors leads to the same conclusion. As set forth above, 12 there is no admissible evidence that TPL, much less Mr. Venkidu is not trustworthy; to the 13 contrary, the OCC selected Mr. Venkidu to run TPL precisely because they do trust him. While 14 past performance and future prospects are relevant to the Motion, they are more relevant to the 15 upcoming confirmation of a plan and determination of feasibility. Undoubtedly, this issue will 16 be addressed and tested when such hearing occurs but, with two plans on the table, one from Mr.
17 Moore, he can hardly argue that TPL has no prospect for rehabilitation. Finally, it seems self-
18 evident that the creditors and OCC would have confidence in an entity operated by their hand-19 picked CEO; whether the "business community" (whoever that might be in the context of 20 international use and infringement of TPL's intellectual property) would have confidence is not 21 something that Mr. Moore addresses at all.

22 Furthermore, the cases cited at the end of Mr. Moore's motion from 10:14 through 11:8
23 regarding "decisions representing trustee removal above and beyond the four stated factors of the 24 statute itself" are also distinguishable from the present case. See In re Oklahoma Refining Co.
25 (10th Cir. 1988), 838 F.2d 1133 (Debtor did not attempt to collect money owed by affiliated 26 companies and avoided offsetting of funds by lenders by depositing proceeds from sale of 27

1 inventory into a New Mexico bank account); In re Embrace Systems Corp. (Bankr. W.E. Mich.
2 1995), 178 B.R. 112 (Debtor had interests adverse to the estate, did not disclose an oral 3 agreement which the court found to be tantamount to a secret settlement without disclosure to 4 creditors and there were no other employees able to comply with the duties and obligations of the 5 debtor-in-possession); In re Cajun Electrical Power Coop Inc. (5th Cir. 1995), 69 F.3d 746 (Court
6 found cause for appointment of trustee due to conflicts of interest regarding Debtor's board
7 members, who were themselves managers or board members of its twelve member companies
8 who bought all their electricity from Debtor, fiduciary duties to its creditors and member-9 customers<sup>17</sup>); In re Marvel Entertainment Group (3d Cir. 1998), 140 F.3d 463 (Buyer of 10 prepetition debt claims and bonds issued by holding companies owning Chapter 11 debtor's
11 stock obtained control of debtor's board of directors were thus creditors and debtor-in-possession
12 which the court found to be an unhealthy conflict of interests and cause for appointment of a 13 trustee under 1104(a)(1).); In re Celeritas Techs, LLC, (Bankr. D. Kan. 2011), 446 B.R. 514 14 (used a preponderance of the evidence standard; also found that discovery disputes such as 15 producing illegible ledgers, failure to disclose material information regarding improved finances,
16 and failing to provide candid and accurate information about Debtors' profitability were breaches 17 of fiduciary duty and sufficient to appoint a trustee).

18 19 III. CONCLUSION

20 TPL and its creditors have made peace. The OCC's hand-picked CEO is in charge of

23 <sup>17</sup> The Motion references "failure to collect payments due from family members" as a basis for 24 appointment of a trustee. However, this language appears nowhere in the Cajun Electric opinion.
25 Moreover, the court's analysis of appointment of trustee in that case was withdrawn upon 26 rehearing and the dissent's reasoning was adopted in its place, holding that the inherent conflicts
27 of cooperative members working at "cross-purposes" was a sufficient basis for appointment of a 28 trustee for cause under 1104(a)(1) and not 1104(a)(2). See Matter of Cajun Elec. Power Co-op.,
Inc., 74 F.3d 599, 600 (5th Cir. 1996).

1 full-throated expression of their consensual resolution of differences. The competing plans
2 should go to a vote and creditors should make their choice. A trustee is, at this point, an 3 unnecessary and expensive distraction. The Motion should be denied.
